AIESEC Receives $12K Grant for Africa Switch Project from P&G Alumni

The Procter & Gamble Alumni Network (non-profit, social network of ex-P&G employees) awarded a grant in the amount of $12,350 to AIESEC's Africa Switch Project.

The Africa Switch Project replicates a past successful AIESEC project where students improve the computer literacy of high school students, thereby increasing their chances of socio-economic development. The project was selected to receive the 2008-2009 grant as its goals and objectives are very much in keeping with the philanthropic mission of the P&G Alumni Network.

Pablo Toledo, Ulf Larsen, Tina Adolfsson and 80+ other P&G Alumni who are also AIESEC Alumni co-sponsored the proposal.

AIESEC won one of five grants, out of more than 60 applications, which is a testament to the creative thinking behind this project and the quality of the proposal.
